

ANNOTATED TABLE OF CONTENTS PROJECT

Temple Law School and the Washington Office of Latin America (WOLA) are launching the Annotated Table of Contents Project this month! The project supports immigration lawyers preparing asylum cases by providing tailored information on country conditions in the Northern Triangle. Under the guidance of Dean Ramji-Nogales, Temple Law students compiled hard-to-find sources in English and Spanish that demonstrate state complicity in persecution by private actors. The research is broken into several claim-specific modules for El Salvador, Guatemala, and Honduras.

We are excited to share our results with you all and hope they will serve to help your clients. Please share this information widely with lawyers and asylum seekers who might find it useful.

Click here to enter your information in order to access the site.

If you have any questions, please feel free to email TempleLaw.asylum.project@gmail.com.